AT THE GOETHEANUM

Child Health as a Basis for Lively Learning

International
Educational Support Teachers &
School Doctors' Conference
24th - 27th October 2020
Goetheanum

Dear teachers,
doctors and therapists
in kindergarten and school!

Bild: Charlotte Fischer

At the beginning of each new school year we can see from the sincere and eager efforts of the first graders: every child wants to learn! At the same time, it often becomes clear after a short time that there are obstacles and hindrances that prevent the child from learning.

We would like to approach the origin of this phenomenon with questions. In this conference we want to return to the first seven years and even to the time before birth. This is the time in which the child wants to feel at home in its body, in order to then gain the basis for learning, through trust in its own body. We will attempt to trace the connection between the development of senses and movement in early childhood and the resulting learning prerequisites and to illuminate this topic from various perspectives.

In interdisciplinary discussions with educational support teachers, class/subject teachers, educators, therapists and school doctors, we would like to exchange ideas, sharpen our eye for the questions the children present us and find a common language in order to support and accompany their development. Against this background, we would like to design the lessons in such a way that the children can overcome their obstacles and hindrances more easily.

We are looking forward to welcoming many of you, to an enthusiastic exchange between the different disciplines.

Note: The main conference starts on 24.10. at 3 pm. As a preliminary program, the school doctors' meeting will take place on 24.10. from 9am-1pm. After the conference from 27.10. at 3 p.m. to 28.10. at 12.15 p.m., the trainers' meeting will take place, at which educational support teachers who are active in training courses will meet.
